Earth work begins at store site in Southport

Earth moving has begun a the site of a once-controversia "discount grocery store" in Wes Sacramento's Southport region

The new Super Cheape store, being built by The Customer Company of Benicia, is designed to sell groceries, liquor and cigarettes as well as gasoline. The project's 8,000-square feet make it several times larger than the average convenience store while much smaller than a supermarket.

"They have a grading permit but no building permit," said Steve Rikala of the West Sacramento Community Development Department. "They are in the process of getting a building permit."

The site is located southwest of Linden Road's southern intersection with Jefferson Blvd.

When the project first came forward in 1996, it was opposed by a number of the area's residents, who feared the store's impacts on crime and other neighborhood concerns. Some residents eventually challenged the store's approval based on its traffic impacts on the congested Jefferson Blvd. and its two-lane bridge over the barge canal, but after a lengthy battle and traffic studies, the company convinced city officials that having a store in Southport would not add traffic to the bridge.

After its city approval, the project faced delays due to changing company plans.

A Customer Company spokesman could not immediately be reached on Tuesday.

Tall strangers in town

A pair of historic replica sailing vessels are in town until Monday at the Port of Sacramento, and are open to tours for the public.

The "Lady Washington" is a replica of the 18th century ship which, in 1787, was the first American vessel to enter Pacific Northwest waters. Built in Aberdeen, Washington, by the Grays Harbor Historical Seaport Authority and launched in 1989, the new "Lady Washington" is built mostly of Douglas fir and is as true to the original as possible. The vessel measures 67 feet on deck (112 feet overall), displaces 170 tons and carries 4,443 square feet of sail area.

The "Hawaiian Chieftain" is a 103-foot square topsail ketch built in Maui and launched in 1988. The ship is built in the style of a 1790s era European trading ship and is made of steel with teak trim and mohogany panelling.

The ships arrived yesterday. Today (Wednesday) and Thursday, they will be available from 4 to 6 p.m. for dockside tours. Tours are also available on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1. Cost is $7 per family, $3 per adult, $2 for students or seniors and $1 for children.

On Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m. and on Sunday from 10 a.m. to 1 and again from 2 p.m. to 5, members of the public can sail along with costumed crew members for battle reenactments at the port. Cost is $40 for adults and $25 per child.

A sunset sail beginning 5 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 6, costs $35 for adults and $15 for each child.

For reservations, call 1-800-200-LADY. The Port of Sacramento's entrance is located south of U.S. 50 and just south of the Harbor Blvd./Industrial Blvd. intersection.

High school student killed in auto accident

By News-Ledger Staff

River City High School reacted with an outpouring of grief Friday after students learned that one of the school's most popular students was killed in a car accident after school the day before.

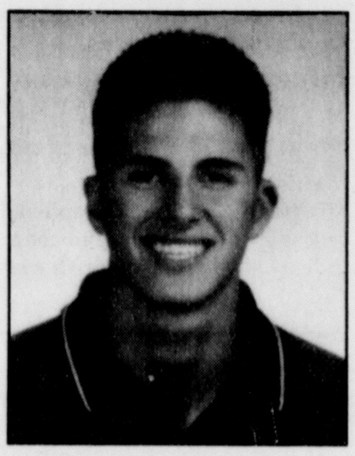
Matt Sidhu, a 17-year old varsity basketball player and a senior at R.C.H.S., had been driving a 1987 Camaro in the Southport area at about 2 p.m. when the accident occurred.

"The vehicle was turning from southbound Hart Ave. to eastbound Blacker Road," said Sgt. Dan Ruden of the West Sacramento Police Department. "Witnesses say after completing the (left) turn, the vehicle began to go out of control and fishtail. It went off the side of the roadway and into a drainage canal, and turned over."

A 17-year old West Sacramento boy in the passenger seat emerged unscathed -- he had been wearing a seat belt. But Sidhu wasn't wearing one, and was transported in critical condition to the UC Davis Medical Center, where he died.

On Friday, students at the school honored his memory with flowers, and the school made counselors available to help Sidhu's classmates deal with their grief.

The youth's family scheduled services for their son this morning in Sacramento, but River City High School held a memorial service Tuesday afternoon at the school, allowing relatives and friends to speak.



MATTHEW SIDHU

Several hundred people attended the memorial service.

David Sidhu, Matt's uncle, thanked the large gathering of students for coming to the memorial service and reminded them that Matt would have wanted them to get on with their lives and live them to the fullest, as Matt had done.

"Matt would have been very proud to know that so many of you thought so highly of him," said Sidhu.

Matt's baseball coach at River City, Jon West, told the crowd, "This is a time when we all need to be kind to each other, and to remember Matt's family, today, tomorrow, next week, and next year."

County to open West Sac office for supervisor

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

At the request of Supervisor Mike McGowan, who represents most of West Sacramento in the county's first supervisorial district, Yolo County will fund the creation of a local office for the supervisor in the county's administration offices on Triangle Court in West Sacramento. McGowan the county's other four supervisors maintain offices in the Erwin Meier Administration Center in Woodland.

The approval came two weeks ago.

"I had made the request for District One," said McGowan. "I suspect both the supervisors for Davis will deal with the issue after the first of the year, and I don't know how Lynell Pollock (fifth district supervisor) will deal with it. They just made room for Lynell in the Esparto library. Tom Stallard (who represents Woodland and a small part of northern West Sacramento) will not want a West

WESTFIELD ELEMENTARY students celebrate the 'Day of the Dead'

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor

Since pre-Colombian times, Hispanics have celebrated Mexico's El Dia de los Muertos, or the Day of the Dead. The three-day fiesta, which runs from October 30th to November 2nd, honors the memories of deceased family members and the festivities include the baking of the traditional 'bread of the dead', the making of sugar skulls, the harvesting of marigolds (the flowers of the dead), and the cleaning and decorating of the graves and tombs of loved ones who have passed away.

At home, traditional altars are erected and adorned with flowers, chocolates, baskets of nuts, fruits, toys, old photographs, favorite foods of the deceased, perfumed incense, and maybe most important of all, lighted candles to help the souls of the dead find their way home. The celebration itself grew from the blending of ancient Aztec beliefs with the Catholicism of Spanish con-

String of traffic deaths hits West Sac

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

In addition to the 17-year old high school senior killed in a single-car accident last week, three other people were killed in separate accidents within West Sacramento's city limits in recent days. The string of deaths was highly unusual, said Sgt. Dan Ruden, traffic officer for the West Sacramento police department.

The accidents were:

■ A 48-year old Sacramento man, Veniamin Vizitiu, was mortally injured at 3:59 p.m. on Oct. 26, as he was apparently trying to cross Harbor Blvd. just south of the West Capitol Ave. intersection and crosswalk.

"He was crossing the road (from the west), toward's Huey's Diner," said Sgt. Ruden. "At the same time, there was a car pulling out of Huey's to turn left onto Harbor, and he struck the pedestrian in the middle of the road."

The victim was "crossing the road at a place where it was illegal to cross," said Ruden.

Vizitiu was taken by ambulance to the UCD Medical Center, where he died on Nov. 1.

The driver in the incident, 22-year old Sabnesh Narayan of Sacramento, has not been charged, said Ruden, although the police report will be passed along to the district attorney's office for routine review.

■ Another vehicle-versus-pedestrian accident took place on Oct. 21 at about 11:30 a.m. on Jefferson Blvd. near F Street.

Alex Sarcos, a 32-year old West Sacramento resident, was driving northbound in the right lane of Jefferson Blvd.

"At the same time, there was a pedestrian on the east side of the road," said Ruden. "Somehow, the pedestrian got into the roadway, either trying to cross it or walking along the shoulder."

Sarcos looked over his shoulder prior to a lane change, and struck the pedestrian, 75-year old Raymond Young of West Sacramento. Young was killed by his injuries.

The victim's presence in the roadway seems to be the primary cause of the accident, said Ruden, although the incident will be forwarded to the district attorney for review.

■ A Sacramento woman was killed in a single-car accident on

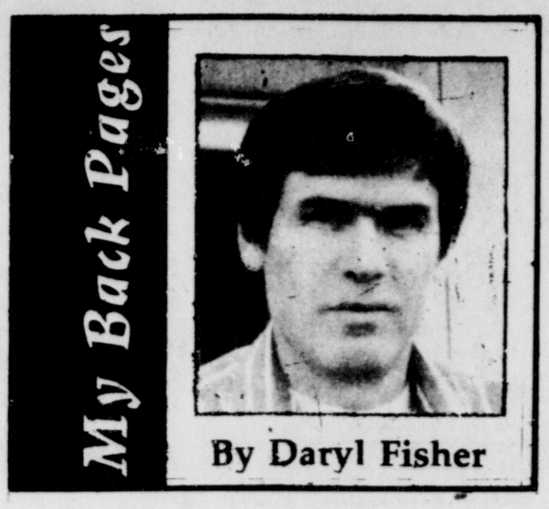
Remembering a World War I veteran -- and Matt Sidhu

Editor's note: the first portion of this column was published several years ago in the News-Ledger. Daryl thought that it would be appropriate to run it again in honor of Veterans Day.



From time to time, usually around Veterans Day, my mind wanders back to a conversation I had years and years ago in a veteran's hospital in Martinez, California with an old, gray-bearded survivor of World War I. At the time, he had really impressed me with his vivid memories of the 'war which was going to end all wars'. He recalled with great nostalgia everything from the sickening smell of mustard gas to the muddy, rat-infested trenches he had hunkered down in for months at a time. He talked at length about all the horrifying battlefield deaths he had witnessed and how lucky he had been to make it back alive to his beloved home state of Tennessee. He also repeated, with great emotion and clarity, the following two stanzas of his favorite poem, "In Flanders Fields."

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the Dead. Short time ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

With his eyes growing wet, he added, "You know, that was the most god-awful war that ever was."

"It sounds like you had a pretty tough time," I said.

"Sonny," he finally replied, "the sad fact is that it was also the best time of my life." He sat up a little straighter in his wheelchair and took a deep drag off a cigarette he wasn't supposed to be smoking. "Do you know how many people on this here earth have died in wars?" he continued, "and in just this century alone?" Before I could answer, he added, "Hell, it only took Hitler about four or five years to knock off 60 million all by himself. Add in my war, your war, and all the other damn little wars that are always going on someplace and I bet we're talking over 100 million easy." The number seemed mind-boggling.

He rolled his wheelchair closer to my bed. "I bet you think everyone in their right mind hates war, don't you? Well, they don't. If everyone hated it, we'd stop doing it, now wouldn't we?" I smiled and it seemed to upset him. "I'm serious," he said. "We make war awful damn appealing, and for a lot of guys like me, it turned out to be the biggest adventure of our life. Hell, I got to see all kinds of places I'd have never seen otherwise, meet all kinds of interesting people, and everyone treated me like a king when I got back home."

His expression turned even more serious and he lowered his voice. "I don't mind telling war stories, Sonny. Fact is, I love to tell 'em, and there ain't much else to do in this place, anyway. But every generation also owes it to the next to tell some of the truth about war, too. How it ain't all just medals and glory, how damned scary the fighting is, how all the wrong people always end up getting themselves killed, how bloody and ugly the dying is, and how few times it really settles a god-damned thing."

He put out his cigarette with his arthritic fingers, field-stripped it, placed the filter in his shirt pocket and positioned his wheelchair to leave. "Well, it's been good talking to you, Sonny."

"I appreciate you stopping by," I said with sincerity.

"I always make it a point to welcome you Vietnam boys."

"It was nice meeting you."

"My pleasure. And don't forget, somewhere along the line, try to remind a few people in that next generation just how god-awful war really is. Okay?"

I nodded my head that I would.

A few days ago, West Sacramento lost one of its finest young men, Matt Sidhu, in a tragic automobile accident. As Matt's family and numerous friends try their very best to endure the unendurable, I find my eyes continually returning to a framed photograph which has sat on top of a bookcase in my living room for the past decade. The photograph is a team picture of the 1988 West Sacramento Little League 'Royals', a pee-wee baseball team that my brother and I coached when my son, Paul, and his son, Brian, were both eight years old. In the back row, second from the end, with his hat pulled down as far as he could get it, stands young Matt Sidhu, who was already a talented athlete back then, and one of our team's best hitters.

As Matt's family and many friends at River City High School warmly recall his contagious smile, his sense of humor, how bright he was, the way he came to effortlessly play the game of basketball, his artistic abilities, and how kind and thoughtful he could be, my memory of him is much smaller, maybe because he was so much smaller way back then, and it is simply this: When Matt would stroll confidently up to home plate, some brave soul would place the baseball on the tee, and then quickly clear out, because when young Matt Sidhu swung a baseball bat, it was with every ounce of energy he possessed. He wasn't up there like so many of the other kids, just trying to make contact and get on base any way he could. No, Matt wanted to hit that ball as far as humanly possible, and it was such fun to watch someone so young be so determined to be one of life's home run hitters.

Godspeed, Matt.

A look at the Raiders' chances

From River City High School

River City High School's varsity football team, picked to finish in the lower half of the league, finds itself atop the Golden Empire League with a perfect 5-0 record, tied with defending champion Colfax. The showdown for sole possession of first place will happen this Friday when the Raiders host the Falcons at Gwinn Field. The J.V. game starts at 5:30 p.m. and the varsity kicks off at 7:30.

Colfax appears to be the favorite going into the contest. The Falcons are the number one rated small school in the Sac-Joaquin section. Their 7-0 overall record includes impressive wins over highly regarded Bear River and Mesa Verde. Colfax is deep, experienced and well-coached. Their Wing-T offensive attack showcases balance and speed at all the skilled positions. They are capable of the big play with either the run or the pass. The defense is solid, as evidenced by holding Mesa Verde to eight points two weeks ago. Mesa had averaged 34 points per game coming into the contest.

River City made its presence felt by pulling off a 28-13 upset over Golden Sierra. The Raiders have used the big play on offense and a bend-but-don't-break philosophy on defense to carve out a 5-2 overall record. The Raiders are improving weekly and put up impressive numbers in big victories over Lindhurst, Marysville and Encina.

River City has averaged 45 points per game in league. Ben Ochoa, Mike Saldana, Mo Salman, Rick Santos and Sean O'Neill make up an offensive line that averages 240 pounds. In describing the offense, head coach Dennis McIntyre said, "We have great speed and a lot of weapons to utilize. Brady Tacdol has rushed for 308 yards and passed for 405 yards with 8 touchdowns at the Q.B. position. Malcom Floyd averages 22 yards per catch with 8 touchdowns. Tailback Malfred Shaw has rushed for 757 yards and also has 8 touchdowns. Robert Cervantes has a 6.6 per yard average with 364 rushing yards. The key to our offense is that opposing teams cannot stop just one player and stop our team. We have great balance."

Defensive coordinator Brian Watkins has put together a unit that plays its best football when the game is on the line. The coach commented, "At times I feel like we give up too much yardage. But we have shown an ability to step up and make the big stop when our back is to the wall. I also like the fact that we have been able to force a lot of turnovers; both fumbles and interceptions."

Defensive standouts include Alfredo Rodriguez (LB), Dominique Alpers (LB), Mike Lara (CB), Eric King (DE) and Marshaun Tate (CB).

With a playoff appearance and Golden Empire League championship on the line, the River City players and coaching staff invite the entire community to come out and support the team.

"This doesn't inspire confidence, you know."

The NFL season is at the half-way point and both Bay Area teams have a 6-2 record and are looking comfortable on the road to the Super Bowl in Miami.

The Raiders' number one defense provided Oakland with their fifth win in a row. The last time the franchise won five straight games was in their 1990 season, when the then-Los Angeles Raiders advanced to the AFC championship game.

The Raiders' 31-18 victory over the Seattle Seahawks put them two games ahead of Kansas City and Seattle. The unbeaten Denver Broncos (8-0) continue to run away with the AFC West. The Raiders continue to win without their starting QB, Jeff George, who may return to the lineup Sunday against the Baltimore Ravens (2-6). Tim Brown broke Fred Biletnikoff's all-time Raiders receiving yardage record. With his four receptions for 74 yards against Seattle, Brown increased his record totals to 632 catches for 9,028 yards! I hope the Raiders don't forget the 1995 season, when they were 8-2 before six consecutive losses cost them a playoff spot! Maybe now, the Raiders fans will jump back on the bandwagon and buy tickets to the remaining games and help lift the TV blackouts.

Oakland 28, Baltimore 17.

Do the Green Bay Packers own the 49ers, or what?

The Packers know the way to beat the 49ers is to pressure and harass Steve Young, and boy, did they do this in style, sacking Young a record nine times! The 49ers were trailing the Packers 16-0 before they even knew what hit them. The 49ers battled back to tie the score at 22 apiece, but when J.J. Stokes couldn't hold on to Young's touchdown pass late in the third quarter, it took the wind out of their sails. After the dropped pass, the Niners' kicker, "Wide" Richey, missed a 47-yard field goal that hit the goal post.

The Packers' next play put the 49ers away for good.

Favre threw another touchdown bomb to Freeman! The Packers now have beaten the 49ers five times in a row, and lead the overall series between the teams (26-25-1). These two teams will probably meet again in the playoffs, let's hope not on the frozen tundra at Lambeau Field! The 49ers were beat up pretty bad, and will need to patch up the offensive line and their secondary before their Sunday encounter with Carolina (1:05 - FOX) at 3Com Park. Rookie cornerback R.W. McQuarter will try to stop the bleeding in the 49er secondary, starting in place of injured Marquez Pope.

49ers 34, Carolina 16.

Last week, I had two winners (Washington +3 and Dallas -7), and lost the 49ers game (+3) to improve my record to 15 wins, 9 losses and one tie. In week 10, I like two home favorites, the Tampa Bay Bucks (-3) over the Oilers and the New York Jets (-3) over the Buffalo Bills. Monday night's game will be much better than last week's game, with the Green Bay Packers (-3 1/2) at Pittsburgh. Take the points and Steelers at home.

West Sacramento boxing fans will have a nice Christmas gift on Dec. 18, when undefeated Willie Jorrin fights live on ESPN's (5 p.m.) Friday night at the fights! The bout will take place in West Sacramento at the Golden State Middle School gym.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial:

Baseball: not a 'done deal,' but a promising one

Can they do it?

River City Baseball promoters Warren Smith and Bob Hemond, along with Art Savage, the new owner of a Triple-A baseball team (one notch below major league level), have a team and have a good stadium site in West Sacramento. What's next -- and hardest -- is finding the money needed to make a new ballpark a reality.

While they look, competitors in Sacramento are trying hard to ensure their own success on parallel proposals by working for River City Baseball's defeat.

Nobody knows better than a West Sacramentan that a shiny, new, ambitiously planned project isn't real until it's built. Plenty can go wrong, as the city has learned. But River City Baseball has a fighting chance to make its dream happen on the West Sacramento riverbank, putting baseball fans behind home plate with a view of Tower Bridge and the downtown Sacramento skyline.

From a spectator's standpoint -- the point of view of baseball fans and their families -- the West Sacramento site is the best site on the board right now. It offers a true potential "urban" ballpark, within walking and shuttle distance of shopping, restaurants and other downtown amenities.

The proposed local Triple-A team also has the benefit of an affiliation with the Oakland A's major league franchise, which likes the idea of having its minor league squad less than an hour and a half away by road. When an A's player is injured, a minor league could be called up to Oakland and ready to play -- no jet lag -- in a couple of hours.

Not to be forgotten is the fact that the A's themselves may soon be on the lookout for a new city to call home. If a West Sacramento stadium is built, and is built to accommodate expansion, it is not impossible that West Sacramento could in five or ten years become home to something Sacramento's mayor has lusted after and all but given up on: a major league team.

The jockeying for position continues.

Schools mismanagement

Regarding the brouhaha over giving local school districts "Strings Free" federal funding, or federally mandating the hiring of a hundred thousand new teachers (a.k.a. new dues-paying union members/contributors) I propose remembering an old axiom. To wit: "Follow the money."

As the legal guardian of my late fiance's now eleven-year-old son, I spent two years on the school "Site Council," at Alyce Norman School, the last as chair. I can remember clearly, numerous occasions where we had almost no "Wiggle Room," so to speak, in planning our budgets for the next schoolyear. So many, and so conflicting, were the constraints mandated by both the federal and state governments, that we were at our wits end at times trying to provide very basic supplies and materials to the children we were supposed to be providing for. There were so many mandated "Programs" for this, and "Specialists" for that, that there were almost no funds left for the very things that bureaucrats wail and bemoan the lack of. Deferred maintenance seemed to be the tool of desperation's choice. It became apparent to me that there were too many "Experts" in the mix, reminiscent of the homily about "Too many cooks spoil the broth," etc...Our educational system has become a textbook example of bureaucratic entrenchment run amok. Codification of "Fiefdoms" at the expense of the very children who are presumably the recipients of our largess.

Consider the following as another example of why I believe our educational system is out of control. Or, rather, under the misguided control of those who, while ostensibly seeking to "improve" the work environment, are unintentionally placing major impediments in the way of "Our Children." I attended a meeting during the last week of October, with the vice-principle, two teachers, two "specialists," and a school psychologist, to consider alternatives for my son's sixth grade curriculum. While there were good faith attempts at solving various conflicts in scheduling, everything seemed to boil down to "contracts." Every time a suggestion was made (by anyone) regarding what would be best for his education, it had to first be weighed against what the various union contracts allowed. Usually in an impromptu discussion amongst the union members, without even a "by your leave" to the boy, or myself (the very reason for their paychecks, and the person who supplies part of the money to pay them). The meeting seemed to take on an almost Kafkaesque atmosphere. I at first tried to be understanding of the extraneous constraints placed on who could teach what, and when, or to how many, until I realized that without my raising strong objections nothing constructive would happen for my son. Finally, grudgingly, we were able to hammer out an almost mutually agreeable arrangement. One that hopefully will help him reach higher up the ladder of achievement, towards his true potential. No one, especially a concerned parent, appreciates being treated with what appears to be amused indulgence, or grudging tolerance.

This was not the first time I've been exposed to this sort of mind set in Parent/Teacher, E.I.P., or other, name your favorite acronym, meetings with staff or management at various area schools. Unfortunately, what seems to have developed in today's school system is a tendency to abide by preordained "decisions from on high," and not practical, what best fits the current situation, solutions devised "on the fly," so to speak. That, combined with an attitude of Well of course we know better, how dare you question us!", seems to bode ill for the future education of "Our children." While I'm not saying that every teacher, or administrator, is a union flack, a bureaucratic drone, or an elitist, I'm indicating that we seem to have gone down a road whereby we feel that only more and more money, and more and more layers of "Oversight/Administration," with their concurrent increases in pay/costs, will solve our problems. All of that, coupled with an increasing reluctance for accountability on the part of the system, appears to indicated a need for drastic change, not a cosmetic make over, in how we teach and prepare all children for the future. If "Choice" is good concept for a friend's thirteen year old daughter, why is choice a bad one for her parent? How dare anyone put pay scales, or contracts, or fees for service, ahead of dedication to excellence, while giving only "half a loaf" when it comes to parental responsibility. Does not the very term responsibility imply control? What control is there when we, by law, have to send our children to a school of the governments choice or else? Unless, of course, we can afford to pay twice. Once through tuition, then twice through taxes we must pay for educators we don't utilize. Why can't we put our educational dollars where we feel it will produce the best results for our children? (Hopefully, one notes that they are our, and not the states, children. I've even read one wag's opinion that schools shouldn't take a parents wishes into account. Elitist pap? You bet.)

If union influence (and money) is an issue, then consider requiring that all teachers, public and private, join one. (A goal of the C.T.A., the N.E.A., et al, already? Amazing!) In a right to work state it would be an uphill battle, however, there is the alternative of banning such membership altogether, in the name of our children of course. That Challenge me.

Two powerful words that kids are saying to their teachers, their schools, their parents. Surprisingly, too many kids think school is too easy. They need, and want, to be challenged.

Need convincing?

- 74% of kids say schools should pass them to the next grade only when they've learned what's expected of them.
- 75% say they'd study harder if their schools gave them tougher tests.

Kids are curious and motivated when challenged in school. Now it's our challenge to challenge them. To educate them with rigorous academic standards and high expectations. To give them the skills and knowledge they'll need to succeed in school, the workplace and everyday life.

We're talking about your kids. Or grandkids. Or kids you know. If you underestimate their desire to learn, you underestimate their future. And ours.

To make that future a bright one, we need to challenge our schools to challenge our kids. And support schools in that effort. It's easy to start. Just call for our free booklet. It's filled with information on how you can help raise academic achievement. And raise the hopes of every kid who wants to succeed.

plum, in either form, would require that not only all teachers and administrators be required to pass comprehensive competency tests, both general and specific, but, also, that parents get back their freedom to place their children in the schools of their choice. Just food for thought. (Notice the emphasis on The parents, Their children, Their choice, and The freedom. A voucher by any other name is still a better choice.)

I, for one, am in favor of parents having more input and responsibility for the educational system. After decades of input from "Experts" on everything from Whole language, to New Math, to "Daddy Has a Roommate," it's no wonder California's scholastic standings area so abysmal.

I came here from New England in the mid-fifties, skipped a grade (sixth to eighth) and still found myself ahead of the class. I've even been told that we shouldn't expect our schools to be on a par with East Coast schools, as we have a more diverse culture. Being from there, I'm not certain that the Armenians, the English, the French, the Dutch, the Scots, nor the Irish, the Italians, the Portuguese, the Cuban, the Norwegian, or the Polish, Indian, or Jewish immigrants (to name a few), or their descendants, would agree.

I-80 westbound in West Sacramento early Saturday morning, Oct. 31.

Valerie Jo Suneson, 22, lost control of her car and struck a guardrail in the center divide. The car overturned. The victim wasn't wearing a seatbelt and was ejected from the car. She was dead on the scene at 1:30 a.m. when California Highway Patrol officers arrived. Alcohol was found in the vehicle.

Sgt. Ruden said the only common factors in two of the accidents were jaywalking (crossing a street illegally, between two intersections controlled by signals) and, possibly, daylight savings time.

"We will respond to the jaywalking by increasing the awareness of it by officers and increasing our enforcement," said Sgt. Ruden.

He added that a UCD Medical Center study found that accidents involving vehicles versus pedestrians or bicycles increased by 62 percent in the first two weeks following a daylight savings time change, possibly because of the change in the time of day darkness occurs.

"That could be a possible factor in the Harbor Blvd. accident," Ruden commented.

Sacramento office, since his constituents are in Woodland."

McGowan said he didn't know the costs of the new West Sacramento office, but said that he and his new aide Amy Cameron will probably split their time between the West Sacramento and Woodland offices when the local office opens its doors after the first of the year.

"One of the reasons I chose to place my district office in the county offices (on Triangle Ct.) is that we're wired there for the phone and computer," commented McGowan. "The costs will be primarily staff time to do the remodelling."

Aside from that, he said, is the cost of adding a wall to partition off the new supervisorial office.

Further information on costs was not immediately available from the county's general services department.

McGowan, who served as a West Sacramento City Council Member and as its first mayor before his election to the board of supervisors, is entering a term as the board's chairman. He next runs for re-election in two years.

County warns of rabies threat

From Yolo County Department of Health

Within the last seven days four bats have been submitted to Yolo County Environmental Health for testing due to possible contact with people or their pets. All four bats tested positive for the rabies virus. Two were from UC Davis, one was from El Macero and the last one came from the south area of West Sacramento. Although there were exposures with pets, only one person needed to be treated.

Any bat that has come in contact with pets or people should be isolated and contained. If you have come into contact with a bat, please call Yolo County Environmental Health at (530) 666-8646 or Yolo County Animal Services at (530) 668-5287, Woodland or (916) 375-6492, West Sacramento.

Rabies or Hydrophobia is an almost invariably fatal disease that is relatively uncommon in man and is primarily a disease of warm blooded animals. In California skunks and bats are the major reservoirs of the disease. In Yolo County this year 6 skunks and 6 bats have tested positive for the rabies virus.

This is the time of the year when most bats migrate south seeking a more reliable locale to find insects, their primary food. It is not unusual to have people or their pets come in contact with bats, especially ill or weak bats, at this time of the year. Any bat that can be caught is more likely to be sick and it should not be handled.

Yolo County Environmental Health recommends the following: 1) All pets and livestock should be kept up to date on their rabies vaccinations; 2) Avoid direct contact with any sick animal or any animal acting abnormally; 3) Report any animal bites to your local Health Department immediately.

Soroptimists plan craft faire

Nat Lopez, president of Soroptimist International of West Sacramento, announced that plans are underway for the 20th annual "Holiday Potpourri." Lora Edwards will serve as event coordinator. Proceeds from the craft fair will be used by the local Soroptimist club to fund their many community activities.

The craft fair will feature items of fine quality, either handcrafted, one of a kind or of artistic value. This year the event is being expanded to allow some commercial items, provided they meet the required criteria. Other organizations are invited to rent space to sell their fundraising items. A few spaces both in the gym and in the quad are still available.

The potpourri will be held on Saturday, November 7, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at River City High School. A pasta lunch will be served from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and a snack bar will be available all day.

Admission is free and the public is cordially invited. For further information please call Lora Edwards at 375-7746, or Eva at 371-8126 after 3 p.m.

Veterans memorial dedication

The Yolo county Veterans Coalition will officially dedicate the Yolo County Veterans Memorial on November 11 at 11 a.m. The ceremony will take place in Woodland at Monument Hill Memorial Park, located at 35036 County Road 22.

The dedication of the Memorial on Veterans Day, November 11, 1998, also marks the 80th anniversary of the World War I armistice. Robert Plots, chairman of the Yolo County Veterans Coalition, spoke of the significance of the dedication ceremony. "This ceremony will provide all Yolo County veterans and their supporters a unique opportunity to focus attention on the service and sacrifice of those who answered their country's call to duty in both wartime and peacetime service in the armed forces," Plots said.

"This is out day to honor those who served in the armed forces of the United States and our nation's guardians who protect and defend the sacred traditions entrusted to us by our Constitution. To paraphrase Winston Churchill: Never has so much been owed, by so many, to so few," Plots said.

The Veterans Memorial is aesthetically unique and consists of a small plaza and walkway located in the center of the Veterans Section of Monument Hill that provides access to the Monument. Four benches are set along the inside of the plaza, and the plaza is outline by three flagpoles upon which the National, State and POW/MIA flags are flown. In the center of the plaza, the focal point of the memorial, stands a seven-foot, six-sided solid black granite monument topped by a bronze American Eagle. Five 18-inch bronze service seals of the Army, Air Force, Coast Guard, Marine Corps, Navy and a memorial plaque are mounted on the monument's surface.

The Yolo County Veterans Coalition, composed of representatives of county veteran's organizations, will host this year's activities at Monument Hill Memorial Park.

'Letters to Literature' contest

December 18 is the deadline for California students to enter the annual Letters about Literature contest.

The contest is run each year by the Center for the Book at the Library of Congress and coordinated at the state level by the California State Library Foundation. The contest is judged at two levels: Level I is for students in grades four through seven, and Level II is for students in grades eight through twelve.

Winning essays at the national level will receive $1,000 U.S. Savings Bonds. The winners in California will receive $500 U.S. Savings Bonds and recognition by the state librarian, Dr. Kevin Starr.

Participating students must select a book, short story, or poem about which they have strong feelings. Each students must write a letter to the author of the book, short story, or poem, explaining how it changed the student's way of thinking about the world. Students in Level I may write letters of 500 words or fewer. At Level II the letters may be of 1,000 words or fewer.

Schools wishing to participate may obtain copies of the contest rules from the Center for the Book at the Library of Congress or the California State Library Foundation in Sacramento.

For more information about the contest, teachers may call Robert Daseler at the State Library, 654-0108.

"Good news, Floogle. I've decided to give you a bonus after all."

quistadors and today is both a public holiday and a private one. Publicly, it is much like Halloween, which makes light of death and pokes fun at it. Privately, however, it allows people to honor the memories of their deceased family members and pray for the salvation of their souls.

As in past years, West Sacramento's Westfield Elementary School's bi-lingual teachers, who include Mrs. Martinez, Ms. Salel, Ms. Andrus, Ms. Bravo, Ms. Gutierrez, Mrs. Plasencia, Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Peralta, have come together to help coordinate a school-wide celebration of El Dia de los Muertos. This year's festivities were an especially rewarding experience because Sacramento's downtown La Raza Galeria Posada chose the young boys and girls of Westfield Elementary School to build one of the student altars the galeria puts on display every year for the public to view.

"We always take our students to La Raza Galeria to see the Day of the Dead altars," said fifth grade teacher Mrs. Peralta, "and we've always hoped that someday Westfield school would be asked to participate, so when we were told we had been selected this year, everyone was pretty excited. First we met with parents and came up with a "heroes" theme, which included the celebration of the lives of Cesar Chavez and Robert F. Kennedy. Then we had different grade levels undertake different tasks. For instance, our fifth graders wrote letters to the Chavez family, and our third graders did paper cutting and traditional art work. The project was opened up to everyone in the school, and approximately 200 of our students participated. It was a really good learning experience for everyone, and our students did a truly wonderful job."

"We didn't have a very big budget," said third grade teacher Cristina Bravo, "but once all the materials had been purchased and distributed, things went pretty smoothly. Some of our parents were very helpful, too, especially with the life-size skeletons, and our kindergarten children did a great job making the colorful mural which serves as the back of the altar."

For the millions who celebrate El Dia de los Muertos each year, the three-day fiesta helps put the cycle of life and death into its proper perspective.

"The children learned so many things by making the altar and the mural," said Mrs. Peralta, "including the fact that it's very important to remember and honor those who have gone before us, especially family members. They also created art and poetry, wrote letters to their grandparents, and brought in photographs of loved ones. And best of all, everyone who participated had a lot of fun, too."

For those interested in seeing the Westfield Elementary School Day of the Dead mural and altar, they are still on display at La Raza Galeria Posada, which is located at 704 'O' Street in downtown Sacramento. The galeria is open Monday thru Friday from 10-5 p.m. and on Saturdays between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Sam's Club gives city a hand

From Art Schroeder

Housing Agency
City of West Sacramento

Laurie Henry (Sam's Club marketing representative) and Phil Schumacher (Sam's Club manager) present Mayor Wes Beers of West Sacramento with a check for $4,000 to purchase computerized presentation equipment for use in the city's business attraction program

Sam's Club, the discount retail chain, has awarded the city of West Sacramento a $4,000 grant in support of the city's business recruitment program. The grant fulfills the company's 1997 decision to award the city $8,000, a sum which was divided into two installments of $4,000 annually. Last year's grant enabled the city to purchase a laptop computer for use with presentation software. The latest grant will be applied toward the purchase of computer projection equipment, improving the city's presentation techniques for business attraction.

Since acquiring the laptop computer, the city's Redevelopment Agency has made several PowerPoint presentations to companies and organizations interested in West Sacramento's business opportunities. The presentations provide a visual tour of commercial and civic developments throughout the city, along with the business advantages of being located in West Sacramento.

"The effective use of this equipment was demonstrated in the recruitment of Affymetrix Inc. to West Sacramento," said Mayor Wesley A. Beers. "A comprehensive PowerPoint presentation played a key role in setting West Sacramento ahead of other cities under consideration by Affymetrix for its new manufacturing facility." Affymetrix Inc., based in Santa Clara, is building a 50,000 square foot facility in Riverside Centre at Reed Avenue and I-80. Affymetrix expects to employ over one hundred people when it is open next summer.

The Sam's Club chain allocates over $2 million dollars annually in industrial development funding, which attracts new industry to its trade territory, encourages existing businesses to expand operations, and promotes job creation.

In June 1997, the city originally applied to Sam's Club for nearly $27,000 in grant funding, of which $8,000 was subsequently awarded for purchase of computerized presentation equipment.

Tours at Stone Lakes wildlife refuge

From Stone Lakes National Wildlife Refuge

Two upcoming refuge guided tours sponsored by the Stone Lakes National Wildlife Refuge feature wetlands and reptiles.

Join biologist Peter Balfour on Saturday, November 14, and examine some of the cold-blooded creatures that call the Refuge home. Learn about a variety of species, their niche in the natural world, and the overall importance of reptiles -- as a food source and a predator -- in wild places. You'll also enjoy views of waterfowl and songbirds that winter on the Refuge.

On Sunday, November 15, explore reconstructed wetlands with Refuge staff. Learn how the Refuge is restoring and creating wetlands to help reestablish an important habitat type that has nearly been eliminated in the Central Valley during the past 150 years. See first hand why wetlands are valuable habitats for waterfowl, wading birds, amphibians, aquatic mammals, and other wildlife, as well as humans.

To reach the Refuge, take Interstate 5 to the Elk Grove Boulevard exit, turn west, and park; the Refuge entrance is adjacent to the highway. Dress for the weather; it may be cool or rainy. Bring drinking water, if desired.

You will walk on graveled roads or across fairly level fields; there are no established trails or facilities, although a portable restroom is provided. Reservations are not required for individuals; groups must call in advance to be sure space is available. For the present time, open touring day (formerly offered on Sundays) has been canceled; in its place the Refuge is offering a second guided tour.

For information, call Stone Lakes NWR at 979-2085 (during work hours).

EARLY AND UNOFFICIAL LOCAL ELECTION RESULTS

The News-Ledger is pleased to bring you the early and unofficial results of yesterday's ballot. These results are accurate as of 12:15 a.m., this morning, and include reporting from all West Sacramento and Yolo County precincts. Statewide, only about two-thirds of the precincts had reported in time for these results. Because of this, results of the local races, such as the city council and school board races, are unlikely to change unless there is a vote counting mistake. But some of the regional and state races and ballot measure results could still change as the rest of the precincts report.
